Interface Security Systems Chooses Honeywell.

The Gateway Arch in St. Louis symbolizes western expansion in the U.S. It's also a fitting metaphor for Interface Security Systems, who recently expanded to the West Coast and equipped their state-of-the-art monitoring facility to remotely manage intrusion, access and video for their global clientele.

Whether they are building a large engineered system for a corporation or designing a smaller system for one of their 80,000 subscribers, Michael Shaw and Michael McLeod turn to Honeywell as their partner of choice. With Honeywell's outstanding products and sales support, it's a decision that has helped Interface grow to even greater heights.
